The Introduced Reindeer of South Georgia

By W. NIGEL BONNER

Some fifty years ago reindeer were introduced into South Georgia which, like all other sub-antarctic islands, has no indigenous land mammals. The reindeer have prospered and there are now two herds numbering over 4,000 head. Mr. Bonner has written for the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey an account of the history and present activities of the herds and their relationship with their environment. Illustrated. 7s. 6d. Beneficial Insects

By B. D. MORETON

It is unfortunate that most people regard insects with suspicion and treat all alike as pests. Of over 21,000 British species only a few hundred are a nuisance to man, and the behaviour of many redounds to his positive and substantial benefit. This book has been written to help Man to recognize his own insect friends. Illustrated.

For a once-in-a-lifetime holiday . . .

a tour of the African Game Reserves

There are more than 20 big Game Reserves in British East Africa, Rhodesia, and the Union. If you look back to your April 1958 copy of the ORYX you will read of the tour your Secretary and his wife made of East and Central African Reserves. Have you considered making a tour like that yourself, as a sort of sabbatical holiday? The first step is to get in touch with Union-Castle —either direct, at their Bond Street office or through your travel agent. Union-Castle can arrange your journey, give you detailed advice, book your hotels, and see that you are looked after on your inland travels. And they will also see, of course, that you are extremely comfortable in your going out and your coming home.
